Arbitration.

The law has always been a curse when fierce controversies are settled by its process. We venture to state that there is not a county seat in the United States that is not monthly and quarterly visited by litigants who maliciously do all in their power to gain advantage over those who may be on the opposite side. Farmers, as a class, are often drawn into such petty lawsuits almost before being aware of it. An unusual degree of stubbornness, fancied wrong, or revengeful motive is often the precursor of a long, interminable warfare of a lawsuit that bankrupts both parties by the costs, periods of time, and vexations of its operations. Instances have been known in which the amounts spent at law in retaliation for injuries that were scarcely worth notice, have been larger than the fortunes of the contestants, and human nature seems to present its dark side in these matters every time. The shrewd, sharp lawyers, who profess to understand law, and explain it, instead of endeavoring to amicably settle these disputes, as lawyers should, mystify and cloud the cases, and do all they can to prevent a comprehension of the matters under dispute.

What is there to prevent farmers, or other persons, from selecting arbitrators and settling their disputes? It is one of the easiest methods that can be adopted, is almost costless, and can be made by agreement, as binding and lasting as any decision directly from a court. And the parties in dispute can state their cases clearer, and make their wants better known in one hour than all the lawyers with their "learned jargon" can do in a year. As the law stands to-day, we place too much power in the hands of judges, who force every man to hire a lawyer, and if they cannot find some ancient or modern law as a pretext for delay, resort to the usual plan of murdering the law by reference to decisions, which practice is now allowed to become paramount to expressed statutes. No matter to them if their decisions are specially manufactured for certain purposes, or come from a drunken imbecile or idiotic charlatan, they are used as reference, and nine judges out of ten give their opinions from them. This is a state of affairs that demands a remedy, and if we cannot cure the evil let us keep away from the courts. It is just as satisfactory to gain the advantage over our opponents by arbitration as by resort to law, and we know that by arbitration the litigant will get at least—justice.—Farmer's Magazine.

The Superstitions of Gamblers.

Enough has been said about the superstitions of gamblers to fill volumes, but the subject will never be exhausted so long as the passion for gambling exists. Among the "Gleanings from Monte Carlo" have recently appeared the following instances of the lunacy to which gamblers are subject:

"A well known Italian Marchesa never sits down without a talisman in the shape of a tiny glass bottle hidden in the palm of her hand and containing a live insect, and one of the most indefatigable votaries of roulette, a Paris banker, positively declined, a few months ago, to commence operations, and returned to Nice, because a ticket bearing the number twenty-nine had been given him at the door in exchange for his overcoat.

"Last winter two habitues were talking of a common friend of theirs, who, one of them remarked, was in deep affliction on account of the death of his only son.

"'Very sad, indeed,' observed the other, 'I conclude that you ascertained the necessary particulars and profited by them?'

"'I did and I did not,' replied the first speaker, 'that is to say, I found out that the boy was eight years old, and that he died on the 30th of November at six o'clock. Naturally I played pretty heavy on these numbers—eight thirty and six—one after another, and then what do you think happened?'

"'They came up,' suggested his friend.

"'Not they. That scoundrel of an employe—the thin one you know with the hatchety face—actually brought up twenty-seven, my pet number, three times running and, of course, I was not on it. Can you conceive anything more unlucky?'"

Origin of Familiar Proverbs.

"Two heads are better than one," was originated by Fremont Cooper, while heading a barrel in his humble cooper shop.

"All's well that ends swell," was said by Burns, when he put a poultice on a lump raised by a hot branding-iron, used in the ganger business.

"Faint tart ne'er won fair lady," was written by Crabbe when he sent a sour apple pie to his mother-in-law.

"Devil take the hindmost," was probably written by Pope.

"Be sure you are right, then go on head," was the remark of Hood.

"Great cry and little wool" is original with Bacon.

"He jests at scars that never felt a wound," Shakspere.

"Man wants but little here below, nor wants that little long," Fellow.

"Too many cooks spoil the broth," shows that it must be Browning.

"The milk in the cocoanut" is evidently from the pen of Cowper.

"Whistling girls and crowing hens" sounds like Howells.

"Don't get your back up at trifles" are the words of Campbell.

"Smooth words butter no parsnips" is the remark of Carlyle.

"A soft answer turneth away wrath," shows how much Wordsworth.

"Enough is as good as a feast" sounds as though the author didn't want Hannah More.

"The nearer the bone the sweeter the meat," is evidently Lamb.

"As close as an oyster" sounds Shelley.

"A thorn in the hand is worse than two in the bush," is from Hawthorne.

"Save at the spigot and waste at the bung-hole," is from Fawcett.

"Not so black as he's painted," sounds like Dickens.

"Mightier than the sword," were the words of William Penn.

"The horse leach hath two daughters, crying, 'Give, give.'" That is "Moore, More."

"He does [illegible] enough to go in when it rains," [illegible] the sentiment of a man who lo[illegible].

There are [illegible] others that will readily occur to the reader, and when you do happen to think of them, dear reader, keep them to yourself. Don't print them. There is enough of this sort of nonsense now. We wouldn't have made the foregoing public but for the reason that we couldn't think of anything worse.—Burlington Hawkeye.

A Rockland man saw advertised "a sure cure for drunkenness." He forwarded the necessary dollar, and received by return mail written on a valuable postal card, in beautiful violet ink the magic words—"Don't Drink."

Pound Away.

A visitor called on President Lincoln when the Union forces in Virginia were apparently doing little but firing guns, and asked him what he intended to do towards putting an end to the war. He replied in his characteristic manner: "O we shall just keep pegging away until it comes to an end."

It is the value of this constant pounding away upon the head rocks of life's problems which we would like to impress upon any of our readers who may need it. Anything can be done that ought to be done if we stick to it long enough, and comply with the conditions of success. Be sure you have an object before you worthy of your effort, and then sit down before it and go to work with the determination to never give it up until you have become the master.

If there is a business enterprise to be carried through, a church or mission to build, a debt to pay, a course of study to be completed, a reputation to be attained, anything, (especially if people say you can't do it) just stick to it in an honorable, intelligent and praiseworthy way, and you will witness the triumph of your hopes at last. Don't mark out a work ignoble and trifling, and to be worth nothing when accomplished. Don't be selfish in your efforts, show to the world that the end of your labor is not to be personal gratification, only be generous, be kind and polite, mindful of the happiness of others, persevere and you will succeed. A good many people enter upon enterprises in a half hearted, discouraged way and fail. Of course, they arranged for a failure at the very start. The "I can't" sort of people never amount to anything and they never will. We know men who have worked through the hardest kind of financial problems by the force of determined will, others who have conquered bad tempers and habits by the simple power of "God helping me it shall be done," and to-day they just rule over themselves because they just would do it. Don't give up. Pound away.

Just Filling His Pipe.

The brighter hours of good Bishop Corbet have been very graphically described by one who knew him well. His Lordship's favorite companion was his chaplain, Dr. Lushington. When the business of the day was over, the Bishop delighted to descend with this faithful henchman into the cellar of the episcopal palace. Corbet would then doff his hood, saying, "There lies the Doctor," he would then divest himself of his gown, adding, "There lies the Bishop." The glasses were filled and the toast was drunk. "Here's to thee, Lushington," "Here's to thee, Corbet."

The celebrated Dean Aldrich was the slave of his pipe. There is a story in the biography of John Phillips, the poet, which not only amusingly illustrates this weakness on the part of the Dean, but gives a curious glimpse of the free and easy way in which the dons and undergraduates of those days used to live. A senior student laid a wager with one of his college chums that the Dean was at that moment smoking his pipe, that instant being about 10 o'clock in the morning. Away, therefore, he went to the deanery, where having made his way into the Dean's study, he explained the reason of his appearance at so early an hour. "Ah," replied the Dean, with the utmost coolness, "you have lost your wager, for I am not smoking but filling my pipe."—From Temple Bar.

The Higher Branches of Education.

Two great consequence has been and is attached to the so called higher branches. But are logic, rhetoric, intellectual philosophy, and so forth, in fact higher branches of learning than reading, writing and arithmetic? They certainly are no more important. Men and women may make a very decent figure in the world and live a life that is well worth living without studying such things at all. To be able to read, write and cypher, however, is indispensable to a fair equipment for the everyday duties of the world. Upon the teaching of these the common school system should especially lay stress. It is questionable, in fact if it can rightfully go any further than these rudiments.—Philadelphia Record.

Horse racing, says a Western preacher, is an ulcer. No, sir, you are mistaken. It's simply a runaround.

Modern poetry seeks many forms of expression in order to do ample justice to the modern young man. Here, for instance, is a verse devoted to him:

> A rather good sized young man
> A not very bad young man
> Sometimes queer and noticeable
> Always church sociable
> Never got any cash young man

THE Chicago, Milwaukee & Saist Paul Railroad Company expects to open its new Council Bluff extension by the middle of May.

THE Illinois Central Railroad announces that its trains to Cairo are running again as usual, the high water having sufficiently subsided.

THE proposition of the directors of the late Merchants' Bank, of Newark, N. J., to pay creditors 75 per cent. and revive the bank, has failed.

THE Mississipi river at Hale's Point, in the state of Tennessee, was seventy-five miles wide a few days ago, when the flood was at its highest stage.

THE state canal commissioners announce that the Illinois and Michigan canal will be opened for navigation throughout its entire length one week from next Monday.

GEN. W. T. SHERMAN, accompanied by Gen. Hancock, Gen. Poe, Colonel Morrow, Miss Sherman, Miss Poe and several friends, passed through St. Louis en route to San Antonio, yesterday.

AND now comes Prof. Proctor, the astronomer, who predicts a comet in 1897, which, he believes, will plunge into the sun, and thus produce a degree of heat that will burn up the world.

MACLEAN, who shot at the Queen, appears to be a "crank," of the Guiteau class, who says he wanted to create a sensation, but did not intend to injure her majesty. He will be dealt with more summarily than our crank was served.

MRS. GARFIELD was visited Tuesday at Cleveland by ex Governor Fairchild, late United States Minister to Spain, who conveyed a kindly message of sympathy from the queen of Spain, with which the bereaved lady was greatly affected.

THE Hon. John W. Foster, ex Minister to Russia, lectured in New York on Tuesday night, on "The Czar and His People." He tried to make clear the situation in a country which, while it has an unrestricted despotism, has many of the political forms of a pure Democracy, and in the course of the lecture, said:

Its religion is vested in all powerful state church, while professors of every faith are permitted to teach their doctrines. Its society on the one hand has a magnificent nobility and on the other the most abject poverty. Its races are various and numerous with conflicting elements, while its topography presents wide spread contrasts. Orthodox Christians of every creed, Catholics, Protestants, Fire Worshipers, Mussulmans, Buddhists and Pagans are all to be found here. In St. Petersburg the Bible has been printed in 119 languages for general circulation. Ninety millions of people are held together by the one ruler. Sixty millions in Central Russia are a unified, compact nationality. Around this mass is a border of small races comprising twenty millions of people, who have little contact with the central population, and each possessing individual interest and pride of patrimony.

These conditions, Mr. Foster claimed, must be taken as explanation of many contradictions and of much confusion over which the Czar, however well inclined, could exercise but little influence that would be seen in immediate effects.

A THIEF considers a spotter an unnecessary and altogether disagreeable person. The conductors on the Denver and Rio Grande railroad were all discharged the other day for "knocking down" fares, and after investigating the matter they came to the conclusion that a Mr. Duckworth, a detective who had been employed by the railroad company as a sort of irregular baggage master, had informed upon them. So they quietly took Mr. Duckworth into the woods and hung him. He was cut down, however, before he was dead, and sought a healthier climate.

THE Chicago correspondent of the Milwaukee Republican asserts that Mrs. Scoville made $1,000 by the sale of copies of her letter to Mrs. Garfield to newspapers throughout the country, and that a smaller sum was netted from the sale of the protest against Mr. Conkling's nomination. It is stated that the negotiations were conducted through a press reporter who shared in the profits. If this is true, Mrs. Scoville has been engaged in a very disreputable piece of business, and deserves the severest censure.

THE Rev. George H. Austin went into the bank at Madison, Ind., and asked for $280 on his own note. The cashier explained, as delicately as possible, so as not to wound the reverend gentleman's feelings, that an indorsement by some person of property was required. Mr. Austin inquired if the signatures of John and Perry Cotton would do, and was told that they would. After an hour's absence he returned with their names forged on the note, got the $280, and absconded.

The Course of Grooming and Diet Necessary to a Lady in Washington Society.

Washington Correspondence Courier-Journal

The institution of Lent brings rest for the weary, swollen feet which last week danced day and night from Monday to Saturday. "How does your daughter stand it?" I asked of a mother whom I met at the Bachelor's german last Friday night. She answered by telling me that the same woman who took charge of her daughter when an infant still had the care of her, and always waited until her young mistress returned from a ball, then she undressed her, gave her a sponge bath, rubbed her well, and, after administering a cup of hot beef tea, tucked her in bed and left her to sleep until noonday, or longer if she was so inclined. As soon as the young lady awoke she was fed with beef tea or some food equally as nourishing; in short, she was treated exactly as she would be if seriously ill, and in that way she kept fresh for the afternoon dancing receptions and the germans at night. Nothing was expected of her but to enjoy herself and rest when she was tired, so she could continue to participate in the gayeties while the dancing season lasted.

Tuesday night this young lady danced until two o'clock at the german given by the Tuesday Club; Wednesday night she danced at the german given by Miss Dora, daughter of Senator Miller, which lasted until 4 a. m.: Thursday afternoon Mrs. Miller had dancing at her regular reception, and Thursday night was divided between the ball given by Commodore and Mrs. English and the charity ball, which kept up until 4 o'clock; Friday afternoon she danced at Mrs. Carroll's, and in the evening at the german I first mentioned; Saturday afternoon she danced at the reception given by the Misses Fox, and rested Sunday, so as to be ready for the german to-night by Mrs. White, daughter of Senator Sawyer, and the ball given at the British Legation.

Peculiar Talents of American Statesman.

From the Philadelphia Press.

At the round table of the celebrated Sam Ward, Oscar Wilde sat directly opposite the esteemed jurisconsult, Mr. William M. Evarts. Mr. Evarts likes nothing better in the world than a slice of Sam Ward's Westphalia ham boiled in champagne, and incidentally is brought into contact with some curious pieces of human bric-a-brac.

The young æsthetic, by the time Sam Ward's Lafitte came on, had ceased to disguise his interest in the lean, lank, silent little gentleman opposite him. He took advantage of an opportunity to say a few words in a low tone to William Henry Hurlburt, who sat at his right. The editor of the World replied at some length in an undertone, adding: "O, by all means, ask him."

"Mr. Evarts," said Wilde, stretching his long legs under and his long chin over the table toward the Secretary of State, "pardon the request, if presumptuous, but it would afford me inexpressible pleasure to hear you recite something of your own, even if nothing more than a poemlet."

Mr. Evarts' astonishment had not allowed him to reply, when Sam Ward broke in:

"Permit me. No poet you know can do justice to his own things." And in the deep, rich voice for which he is famous, he repeated the whole of Theo. Tilton's "Aimer, aimer, c'est a vivre."

"Capital," said Wilde, "but really, you know, I had no idea that that sort of thing was cultivated here by your statesmen."

"Oh, yes," said Sam Ward, with a side glance at Hurlburt, "and Evarts recited those verses once to a public audience in Brooklyn, where I assure you they were heard with appreciation."

An Old Lesson Newly Illustrated.

From the Chicago Herald, Rep.

At present the south has 106 Representatives, of whom 70, or 66⅔ per cent. were members of the last House. The north has 187 Representatives, of whom 103, or 58.29 per cent. were members of the last House. Except for the rise of Greenbackism in the south, and for the Liberal movement in Virginia, Georgia and other states, the ratio of re-elections would have been larger for that section. Five of the nine Greenbackers in the House are from the south. A similar outcome is obtained by contrasting the representation of the two political parties. The Democrats have 135 members, of whom 90, or exactly 66⅔ per cent. as in the sectional case, were re-elected. The Republicans have 147 members, of whom only 86, or 59.83 per cent were re-elected. In this art of directing and strengthening the partisan array, the Democracy have always been superior to the opposing party, and herein Republicans may learn a lesson to their own advantage.

NEWS BY TELEGRAPH.

MacLean,

The Man Who Wanted to Rival Guiteau,

By Shooting at Queen Victoria.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 3.—The principal question to-day is, "Will Conkling accept?" There are as many opinions upon it as are possible upon a question of this sort. The majority probably vote that he will not, but those nearest the throne believe he will accept. Nothing has been heard from him at the White House since the confirmation, nor has he been in Washington, as has been currently reported.

The bill to retire Alfred Pleasonton, late major general, on full pay, is intended as a set-off to the Grant retirement scheme, and was introduced to test the sincerity of congress regarding the subject. Senator Ingalls intends to push it, but it will hardly go through.

It is probable that the sentence of the court marshal, dismissing Lieut. Flipper from the army, will be modified by the secretary of war and the president.

C. A. Logan, brother of Eliza and Olive Logan, and a relative of the senator, who has been nominated as minister to Chili, will be confirmed in a few days.

Sergeant Mason has been returned to his cell, which has been materially improved in his absence. He will remain there until General Hancock acts on the verdict. It is generally believed in army circles that Mason will get three or four years in the prison at Fort Leavenworth.

No official announcement of the attempt upon the Queen's life has yet been received, and until such notice is received, nothing will be sent. So soon as it is, however, a dispatch of congratulations at the Queen's escape will be sent. This is the fifth time the Queen has been shot at, and she has every time escaped uninjured.

The report of the minority in the Utah case is nearly completed. It declares Cannon eligible under the laws.

The indications are that the bill retiring Grant will have a pretty hard time of it getting through the house. It is being vigorously opposed in committee, and will be fought in the house.

The committee on foreign affairs has had leave to sit during the session of the house, in order to investigate the Peru-Chili matter. It will begin Monday.

The condition of Mr. Allen, member from St. Louis, one of the wealthiest members of congress, is very low, and there seems no prospect that he can last long. He had several hemorrhages night before last, and a physician was with him all night, fearing a recurrence.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 3.—At a meeting of the board of supervisors yesterday afternoon, Mayor Blake read a message on the Chinese question, recommending the board to adopt resolutions in positive, dignified language, expressing the evils wrought by Chinese immigration, and urging its suppression. The board adopted the resolution indorsing the message, and approving the action of the congressional delegation regarding the anti-Chinese measures. Arrangements are going forward actively for a mass meeting to-morrow.

It is reported that 40,000 tickets have been issued at Hong Kong, to be used immediately after the passage of the anti-Chinese bill by the Chinese intending to emigrate to the United States.

It is stated on positive authority that the recent unusual influx of Chinese is not due to the importations by railroad contractors, but to the action of the Chinese Six Companies. Chinese to work on the Western Division of the Canada Pacific have been contracted for, but will be shipped direct from China to Victoria.

LONDON, March 3.—From later accounts it appears that MacLean fired the shot after the carriage was in motion. Princess Beatrice and John Brown saw him point the pistol at the carriage. He was exactly thirty paces distent when he fired. Two of the four loaded chambers contained only blank cartridges.

MacLean walked from Portsmouth to London a week ago. Upon his person was found a purse containing a penny and three farthings, and a pocketbook containing the following entries:

Fourth path. A novel, by MacLean and Reynolds. Newspaper gives as correct an idea of the wide difference that divides people of England as any newspaper in the world. I venerate free and outspoken principles and an unbiased thinker.

MacLean was charged at the police station with shooting at the Queen with intent to do grevious bodily harm. He asked whether any one was hurt, but the police refused to give him any information.

After searching the yard at the railway station for an hour this morning, the police found a small bullet imbedded in the ground. It bore the marks of having first struck some other object. It was right in the direction of the spot over which the Queen's carriage was passing, having probably passed over the horses heads.

The Queen and Princess Beatrice walked on the castle terrace, as usual, early this morning. It is officially announced that the Queen passed a good night, and was in no way affected by the attempt on her life.

MacLean passed a restless night. He will be brought up at a special sitting of the Windsor Borough of Justices this afternoon.

The Times says: "If no more can be said for MacLean, the would-be assassin of the Queen, than could be said for Guiteau, the assassin of President Garfield, or Lefroy, the murderer of Gold, he can as little expect to escape punishment."

A witness of the shooting states that MacLean was observed fumbling in his pocket while the Queen was being helped into the carriage, but the pressure of the crowd prevented him from raising his arm until the carriage was in motion. The same cause made him aim very wide.

The bullet found in the station yard weighs about one-third of an ounce. It has been compared with others found on MacLean, and found to correspond with them exactly. Before the revolver was seized, the prisoner had another loaded chamber opposite the hammer.

MacLean's antecedents show that he is eccentric, and addicted to drink.

It appears that MacLean roughly endeavored to force his way through the Eaton College students, who were at the station, to a good position to await the passage of the Queen, and consequent hustling prevented his having an opportunity to fire when he might have done so with a worse result.

Before beginning business at the Stock Exchange this morning, all the members sang, "God Save the Queen."

Minister Lowell's telegram to Gen. Ponsonby says: "I beg you to convey to Her Majesty my heartfelt congratulations on her escape."

Telegrams expressing similar sentiments were arriving at Windsor throughout the night.

ROME, March 2.—A motion of congratulation at the failure of the attempt on Queen Victoria's life will be introduced in the Chamber of Deputies to-day.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 3. The following is a copy of the telegram sent by the Secretary of State to Minister Lowell to-day:

LOWELL, MINISTER, LONDON: The President and people of the United States congratulate Her Majesty on having been providentially protected from the assassin. Remembering the sympathy of Her Majesty and the British people in our recent national bereavement, the feeling of indignation, and thankfulness for the Queen's safety is deep and universal.

"[Signed] FRELINGHUYSEN."

CHICAGO, March 4.—The police at 1 o'clock this morning raided the gambling house of John Dowling, one of the largest in the city on a search warrant, and carried off the appurtenances. No gambling was in progress at the time, and the gamblers are still defiant.

Aged Gratitude.
FLINT, MICH., June 22, 1881.
H. H. WARNER & CO.: Sirs—I am 72 years old, and have not been so well in 26 years as I am to-day, thanks to your Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, the best remedy in the world. LEWIS WILLIER.
3-d&w1w

LONDON, March 3.—The police have ascertained that MacLean was formerly in Well's lunatic asylum, only being discharged in September last, and had also been confined in other asylums.

LONDON, March 3.—In the house of commons this evening there was a considerable scene in consequence of Johnson, attorney general for Ireland, virtually admitting that a warrant under the coercion act existed against Arthur O'Connor (home ruler) member of the house for Queens county. He inquired with what offense he was charged. T. M. Healey, member for Wexford borough, who believed a similar warrant existed against himself, seconded O'Connor's motion.

Phillip Collan, liberal member for Louth, endeavored to exact a pledge from the government not to cause the arrest of members visiting their constituents. Gladstone refused to grant such immunity, or give any further information. O'Connor finally withdrew the motion, saying that he knew the warrant contained utterly unfounded charges of treasonable practices. He defied the government to try him in England.

NEW YORK, March 3.—Rowell has withdrawn from the race. When Hughes heard of Rowell's withdrawal he said: "I've carried my point: I have broken him up." And so he had indeed accomplished his end and had forced the retirement of the little Englishman, who for the first time had suffered humiliation, being beaten and by a man who had sacrificed his chance of winning for the purpose of pushing the champion so hard in the first part of the race that he couldn't possibly go through until the end; nature could stand no more. Hughes had pushed Rowell the first day and compelled him to cover 150 miles in a little over 22 hours, and had kept up the strain on the succeeding day until Rowell couldn't possibly go much further. 12 o'clock score—Hazael, 490; Sullivan, 533; Noremac, 442; Hughes, 422; Fitzgerland, 468; Hart, 419. 3 p. m.—Hazael, 503; Sullivan, 440; Noremac, 456; Hughes, 430; Fitzgerald, 499; Hart, 360.

Midnight score—Hazael 540 miles, Fitzgerald 513¾, Krone 496½, Hart, 488¾, Hughes 470, Sullivan 462⅝.

It is estimated that betting on the race will reach $80,000 in round numbers, of which $50,000 has been done in the garden.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 3.—The minority report of the house committee of elections on the Cannon case, from Utah, is finished, and will be submitted to the house probably to-day. It maintains that Cannon was fairly elected, and is qualified to his seat under the constitution and laws, and the precedents of the house. The report is signed by Moulton and Davis, Democrats; Jones, Greenbacker, and Ranney and Pettibone, Republicans.

The house committee on foreign affairs will commence an investigation of the Chili-Peruvian correspondence on Monday next.

LOUISVILLE, March 3.—R. H. Bishop, son of an ex-governor of Ohio, shot Leroy Hart, of Pittsburg, on the steamer General Lytle, last night, near Patriot, Ind. A fight occurred in the bar room of the boat over a dispute. Hart's arm and shoulder were badly injured.

Still Locked Out

Owing to the Midland lockout at Peoria for non-payment of debt, no trains on that road were run west of Decatur on Thursday or Friday, and to-day business on that division is at a standstill. Yesterday the United States mail in charge of Agent Jenison was carried as far west as Farmdale in a caboose and there put upon a train that went into Peoria over another road. The Peoria Journal of last evening contains the following:

Nash, the local agent of the Illinois Midland road, informed a reporter this morning that the difficulties existing between his road and the P. & P. U. company would be settled to-day. The I. M. will pay a part of their indebtedness and give ample security for the balance, when the Mustard Plaster will be withdrawn. There is nothing like a good blister for the various ills with which railroads are afflicted. Should the I. M. get in arrears again, a good, healthy, full grown fly plaster will be applied.

The Midland officials in Decatur state that all is still inactive on the west end of the line, which means that the [illegible] matter is not yet settled.

RECENTLY farmers residing eight miles south of Decatur, in Wheatland township, have been pestered with thieves who have broken into smoke houses and stolen meat. James Foster lost three shoulders, Newton Howell four hams and James Simpson three shoulders. Thus far the guilty parties have not been discovered. The doors of the smoke houses will remain securely fastened in future.

Hoffman's Latest Card

The Bloomington Pantagraph of yesterday contained the following, which will be of interest to the many acquaintances of Mr. Hoffman in this community:

The end of the agitation, for the present at least, over the Hoffman case, has been reached at last. The feeling that it were better to not call him before the public gaining ground among one or more of his warmest friends who had been consulted in the lecture movement, the matter was dropped. It is understood that Mr. Hoffman will be presented with a purse by those who feel inclined to do so. The public feeling is one of gratitude and relief that the matter has dropped out of sight, and all sides are pleased that the way it ended. The following card explains the position of the reverend clergyman:

After consultation with the [illegible] directly interested in the [illegible] lectures, it was thought best, in view of the fact that it has been extensively circulated in a private way that the lectures would [illegible] to the interests of the church [illegible] which I have had the pleasure [illegible] and feeling now [illegible] its prosperity, I take the responsibility at announcing that the lectures will not be given. H. O. HOFFMAN.

J. A. JONES, of Decatur, held ticket 40 [illegible] which drew the Haworth check rower in the J. R. Race & Co. gift drawing. Timothy Condon, of Decatur, held 3066, taking the $15 youth's suit. A. H. Evman of Harristown held 2,808, taking the $20 suit of clothes. The winners of the cash prizes have not yet reported. They will come to time in a few days.

TWO attorneys got into a little altercation in a justice's court this forenoon, but there was no blood shed. Chairs were raised and flourished in mid air, but friends stepped between and the threatened sanguinary conflict was promptly nipped in the bud.

THE great tragedian, Mr. Thomas W. Keene, will appear in Decatur on Wednesday evening, March 15th, as Richard III, supported by a superior company. On the evening of March 16th Annie Pixley and company will give us "M'liss, the Child of the Sierras."

REV. W. H. PRESSLEY conducted the services attending the funeral and burial of the late Mrs. Susan Latham, which occurred on yesterday afternoon. The deceased was the wife of an employee at Wayne Bro's establishment. The attendance of neighbors and sympathizing friends was large.

HEAR the Jubilee Singers at the tabernacle to-night.

Gratuitous Hints

[illegible] suggested to pew holders: Do not be [illegible] if you were looking [illegible] special friends, like a set [illegible] not rise to let others in, but move along and leave the pew invitingly welcome. If a pew holding six has five already in it, do not file out in formal procession to let one poor scared woman go to the farther end, but move along and let her sit down at the end next the aisle. It is not necessary now for [illegible] to sit at the end ready to rush out and kill Indians, as we may suppose from some of the histories of early times it once was in many parts of the country. These are suggestions of common sense whether found in Oscar Wilde's last lecture or not.

THE two year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kutz died in Long Creek township on Friday night.

The Jubilee Concert To-Night

The celebrated Jubilee Singers have arrived in the city and will appear at the tabernacle this evening, and give one of their pleasing and original musical entertainments. Said the Topeka Capital:

The New Orleans University Singers had a fine audience at the Methodist church last night. There are eight singers, a double quartette, and in organist. They came with the recommendation of the press of other cities as the best jubilee singers traveling. The programme opened with a chant of the Lord's prayer, a beautiful thing, and in some respects the best performance of the evening, as it showed better than anything else how perfectly their voices blend. Aside from the popular hymns and melodies such as "Angels meet Me at the Cross Roads," "Roll a and Rock a dem in His Arm," "The Old Ark is Moving," "Joshua Fit de Battle of Jericho," "Gospel Train," "General Roll Call," etc., some music of an entirely different style was introduced. Mrs. Toombs sang an operatic air in which she displayed the wide range of a voice of remarkable power and compass. The laughing song by Mr. Tilman was one of the best features of the entertainment. Bliss' Prelude [illegible] was admirably done.

Admission 50 cents.

A Flat Burlesque

The original Vokes Family, five in number, appeared at the opera house last night and were greeted by a large and fashionable audience, there being nearly as many people present as were in the hall when the jolly "Tourists" were here. Those who had seen the Vokes Family in the larger cities, praised their entertainment in glowing words and told their friends to be sure and go, while the company was strongly endorsed by exchanges. Our people had good reason to expect a fine performance, one much better than the average, but candor compels us to state that the entertainment was a draggy, wordy and wearisome affair from beginning to end. "Ruth's Romance," an English comedy, was entirely too early English, and was received coldly by the audience that watched closely for some point to applaud, but failed to discover it. The performance concluded with what was termed "The operatic, tragical, comical extravaganza, Belles of the Kitchen," during the presentation of which there was some fine dancing, very ordinary singing, and a splendid show of beautiful and costly costumes, diamonds and emeralds, but that was all there was of it. There was a manifest strained attempt on the part of the "originals" to say and do something funny, but there was little to smile at except, perhaps, the school girl giggle of the feminine athlete, Miss Bessie Sanson, without whom the entertainment would have been entirely spiritless. Fully two-thirds of the audience went home disappointed with the company. Those who had not seen an entertainment of the kind were doubtless pleased with the Vokes, but the regular amusement goers of Decatur would rather see the "Tourists," "Jollities" or "Harrisons," the so-called imitations of the Vokes, any time. The Vokes Family take well in towns which have not been visited by troupes giving similar or better entertainments. They are entirely too early English for this community. Decatur will be better pleased with imitations in future. [illegible] burlesque [illegible].

[illegible] Fall

Patrick Hunt, a laborer and a single man, aged about 60 years, fell down stairs in Patrick Byrnes' boarding house at Niantic on Friday morning and broke his neck. He was found dead. An inquest was held under the direction of Coroner Dunnon, and the jury, which was composed of J. G. Kizer, H. Beall, Jess. Eckhart, H. N. Clark, J. H. Kizer and A. H. Lord, returned a verdict of accidental death. The deceased had lived at Niantic for many years and was well known in that section of the county. The funeral took place in that city this afternoon.

SCHOOL yards are almost universally too small. They teach nothing unless it be in the direction of negligence and untidiness. Many of them are unfenced and open to the "highway cow," and all classes of vagabond animals. Where enclosed they are allowed to grow up to weeds. They do not afford even a decent playground for the pupils. In general they are a shame and a reproach to both school directors and the parents of the children.

THE BUILDING OF HOMES.

A Farmer, in American Agriculturist.

Double doors—folding or sliding—are a great social "institution." By them two rooms may be thrown into one. A good broad hall becomes in summer an extra room. The air circulates. There is a freedom, an openness about the house, which gives an air of superiority to even very humble dwellings. The superiority is real, too. If we invite a few friends for the evening, it is unnecessary to confine them to the "parlor," but the doors are thrown wide open, our guests will fill parlor, and hall, and sitting room and kitchen, perhaps, and yet all are one company, for the broad doors being open, the whole house is thrown together. Music sounds through such a house delightfully, and people have a good time and love to come, because it is so cheerful and social. Another point in our home building which we too often overlook is the exposure of the principal living and sleeping rooms to the direct influence of the sun. The effect of the sunlight is best gained when the house stands with its corners toward the cardinal points for thus the sun shines with considerable power on all sides of the house every clear day in the summer, and yet his power is broken, because at noonday the rays strike two sides obliquely; and very soon leave the southeastern side in the shade. We should not forget that the sunshine is health-giving; dampness and shade, if slightly in excess, injure the health of both men and animals.

One thing more is the importance of having some provision for fire in the chambers. We build for health and not for sickness, and I do not hesitate to say that many a family mourns the loss of a member simply because the sleeping room could not be easily heated.

The best mode of heating no doubt is by an open fire of some kind. It is very easy in building to make open fire-places in at least three chambers through which the chimney passes.

Of course open fire-places are not economical of fuel, but in the chambers fire is seldom wanted, and stoves may be used, if preferred. As to economy of fuel, builders as well as architects and proprietors, either frequently overlook one important fact, or they do not look at it, that is that the warmest part of any room is farthest from the floor; so if we make our rooms ten or eleven feet high we must heat the air in all that upper part before a person sitting at a table begins to feel at all warm, unless he is where he gets radiation from the stove or open fire. Low ceilings effect the greatest economy of fuel, and even make open fires economical as compared with stoves and high ceilings. Nine feet is, I think, an extreme hight for the ceiling of an ordinary country house, say one in which the largest room is not more than twenty feet square, or of equivalent area.

Besides, there are numerous considerations which tend to the saving of fuel and at the same time increases the healthfulness and comfort of a home. Some of these are material of the walls, their impenetrability to air and moisture, "deafening" of the floors which adds greatly to their wramth, good joiner work about windows and doors etc.

A Novel, and Perfect Cure for Scrofula Salt Rheum, Cancer, Etc.

A discovery has recently been made which adds luster to the Nineteenth Century. It consists simply in an extract from the Red Clover Blossom, as extracted by J. M. Loose & Co., Monroe, Mich., who have gone into the business largely in order to supply the increasing demand. For sale by Dr. A. J. STONER.

A slight testimonial:

TOLEDO, OHIO, Jan. 17, 1882.
J. M. Loose & Co., Monroe, Mich.:

Gentlemen- My wife has for some time been afflicted with something like a scrofulous disease, and found no relief until she gave your Extract of Red Clover a trial. I am happy to say she has experienced great relief. This is but a slight testimonial of my appreciation of your efforts in behalf of humanity, which you are welcome to use for their benefit. I am very respectfully, H. AHMS.

A Classical Joke.

Chicago Times.

Mr. Robert Burdette, the humorist of a Western paper, lectured in New York the other evening, before the Young Men's Christian association. In the course of his address he referred kindly to Colonel Ingersoll, "whose success, the lecturer thought, was owing to his overwhelming humor, which made his audiences laugh at their own dearest creeds. 'And I believe,' continued Mr. Burdette, seriously, while his audience was hushed—'I believe Colonel Ingersoll's position is sound.' There was a moment's hesitation, and all the tittering stopped. 'I know,' continued the speaker, 'it isn't the thing to say in this hall, and to this audience, but I have said it, and I won't go back on anything I have said.' It appeared for a moment that Mr. Burdette's candor had got the better of his discretion. He continued: 'But that is the trouble with Ingersoll. It is all sound, like a bass drum, and no sense.' The orthodox audience was relieved, and expressed itself in great laughter." Colonel Ingersoll, however, need not be disheartened by the incident, if he will pause to reflect upon the intelligence of an audience which could laugh so heartily at so ancient a joke.

Josh Billings.

The famed writer of the Yankee proverbs is now about 60 in years, and shows it. His hair, which is as long and unkept as ever, is iron gray, and his stiff, drooping mustache is fast changing to the color of old age. As he grows older, he seems to become more and more supremely regardless of persons, surroundings or opinions. As he greets one with a machine-like "How do ye do," or an inanimate "Good day," the impression is conveyed that he has arrived at the state of life and prosperity where he deems fate powerless to work any alteration for the worse. Billings is essentially a man to himself, taciturn and unobtrusive everywhere. His royalty from the circulation of his "Proverbs," his almanacs and other works swell his yearly income to about $5,000. He is now a willing, but not an attractive lecturer; his services in that field are small and wanting demand. From the proceeds of his labor he has amassed a fortune of over $50,000. All this money apparently affords himself and wife but meager and inelegant comfort. They pass a quiet, relegated, but doubtless contented life, in an unpretentious Sixty third street dwelling house, the garret of which is made to answer the combined purpose of literary sanctum and storehouses.

A POPULAR TONIC

For Weak Lungs and Consumption.

No preparation ever introduced to the American public, for the relief and cure of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Debilitated Constitution, Weakness of the Lungs, or Consumption in the incipient or advanced stages of the disease, has ever met with the indorsements of physicians or patients as the celebrated "Tolu, Rock and Rye." The repeated and continued sales of the article everywhere are the best evidence of its real merits. Letters and testimonials from every quarter of the country, attesting the stimulating, tonic and healing effects, are in possession of the proprietors, and can be adduced to convince the most skeptical reader of its intrinsic virtues. Further commendation is unnecessary and superfluous, as a trial of this article, having a pleasant taste and agreeable flavor, will satisfy all those who are afflicted or pining away with pulmonary weakness of the relief to be secured by the use of Tolu, Rock and Rye. An Old Conductor Had Tried a Great Many; Prominent Physicians, and Could Get No Relief.

LOGANSPORT, IND., Dec. 6, 1881.

Messrs. F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.—Gentlemen: "I have been a victim of Catarrh for six years, and it has been so severe most of the time that many of my friends insisted that it was assuming consumption, and most of the time for the past two years have not been able to attend to business, and during that time have tried every conceivable remedy and many prominent physicians, and could get no relief, but about three weeks ago, a friend of mine advised me to try HALL'S CATARRH CURE as a last resort, and I commenced taking it, and THE EFFECT IS WONDERFUL. I have only used two bottles, and I feel like a new man—in fact, better than I have felt for years; and feel that it is performing a cure, and earnestly recommend it to any and all afflicted with Catarrh and you can refer any doubtful one to me.
